

Consent to medical or dental treatment

This fact sheet provides information about applying to NCAT's Guardianship Division for consent to medical or dental treatment for people who lack the capacity to consent for themselves.

Seeking treatment consent

When is it necessary to seek substitute consent?

Most patients are capable of understanding the information that doctors and dentists give them and are usually able to make a decision about a proposed treatment.

If a medical or dental practitioner believes that a patient is incapable of understanding the general nature and effect of the treatment when it is explained to them and therefore is not capable of giving a valid consent, then they must normally seek substitute consent.

There is no need to get substitute consent for:

- Urgent treatment that is considered necessary to save the patient's life, to prevent serious damage to the patient's health or to alleviate significant pain or distress
- Minor treatment when the patient is not objecting, consent from a person responsible is unobtainable and the treatment is necessary to promote the patient's health and wellbeing.

Who identifies the need for substitute consent?

The medical practitioner must determine if substitute consent is needed, identify who must give the consent, and obtain the consent.

Who has the legal authority to give substitute consent?

Under the Guardianship Act 1987, depending on the category of treatment, the substitute decision maker is either:

- the person responsible (see below)
- a guardian appointed with a medical and dental consent function, or
- the NSW Civil and Administrative Tribunal (NCAT).

In most cases where substitute consent is required, there will be a person responsible.

Person responsible

Who is the person responsible?

A person responsible is not necessarily the patient's next of kin or carer.

Under section 33A(4) of the Guardianship Act 1987, there is a hierarchy of people who can be the person responsible.

A person responsible is one of the following people in order of priority.

1. Guardian – An appointed guardian (or enduring guardian) who has been given the right to consent to medical and dental treatments, or
2. Spouse or partner – If there is no guardian, a spouse, de-facto spouse or partner where there is a close continuing relationship, or
3. Carer – If there is no spouse or partner, an unpaid carer who provides or arranges for domestic support on a regular basis, or
4. Relative or friend – If there is no carer, a friend or relative who has a close personal relationship, frequent personal contact and a personal interest in the person's welfare, on an unpaid basis.

The person next in the hierarchy may become the person responsible if:

- A person responsible declines in writing to exercise the function, or
- A medical practitioner or other qualified person certifies in writing that the person responsible is not capable of carrying out their functions.

In any case, NCAT has the authority to consent to medical and dental treatments for people 16 years and over who are incapable of consenting to their own treatment.

For information about consent requirements for different types of treatment, refer to the table at the end of this fact sheet.

Applying to NCAT

When is an application to NCAT necessary?

An application to NCAT is necessary if the treatment is:

- Special medical treatment
- Major medical or dental treatment, and there is no person responsible or the person responsible is not available, or
- Major or minor medical treatment when the patient is objecting and there is no appointed guardian authorised to override such objection.

How do you apply for consent?

You need to complete and lodge the Application for consent to medical or dental treatment form. The application form is available on the NCAT website.

How to lodge your application

To lodge your application form and attachments:

- Post
NSW Civil and Administrative Tribunal
Guardianship Division
PO Box K1026, Haymarket NSW 1240
